

OCEAN TO OCEAN
WILL BE LINKED

Rockefeller Standard Oil System Projected

Single Hiatus Between Detroit and Chicago Will Be Filled in Short Time.

ONLY ONE LINE IS LONGER.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—With only a gap from Toledo or Detroit to Chicago to be filled, the Standard Oil company has completed its plan of securing a transcontinental line that will extend from ocean to ocean and be the longest stretch of railroad in the world, with the single exception of the Siberian railway. Various lines constitute the Standard control, and if the announcement of H. H. Rodgers is verified the single hiatus in the system between Detroit and Chicago, will be bridged before many more days have passed.

The proposed transcontinental system will make the Rockefeller coterie as absolutely dominant in the railroad financial quarters as they now are in the oil industry.

The new system will be composed of the following roads, which will, according to statements made in Washington on the highest authority, soon be welded together into a transcontinental system:

The Virginia railway (commonly known as the Tidewater and Deepwater), from Norfolk, Va., into West Virginia, and soon to be connected with the river.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, extending from Ironton, Ohio, on the Ohio river, north and west across Ohio and Michigan.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, from Chicago and Milwaukee west to the Pacific coast.

The system, when completed, will have a main line mileage of about 3,700 miles from ocean to ocean.

RETURNS TO GET DIVORCE AND GETS ARRESTED ALSO

Abe Thompson, formerly a driver of a tea and coffee delivery wagon, is held under bond of $300, charged with enticing and aiding a female under 21 years of age to enter a house of ill-fame. Thompson married Miss Hattie Heath in 1903 and after one year she filed a divorce suit, alleging non-support. Thompson was accused of being in a house on the north side with Rosa Dounoy, aged 15 years, daughter of Maggie Dounoy. The woman who ran the house was fined $40 and costs in the police court and Thompson went to Memphis. Today he returned and filed suit for divorce against his wife, alleging abandonment, but was arrested by Patrolman Ernest Hill.

SOMEBODY THROWS GLASS TO PUNCTURE AUTO TIRES.

The automobile club is preparing to do a little detective work to learn the identity of persons, who have been breaking glass on streets. During the past week many broken bottles and window glass have been strewn about the streets in all parts of the city, but particularly on the streets most frequented by automobiles. While it is not charged openly that glass is broken to puncture tires, it is generally understood that this is the purpose of those responsible for the presence of the glass. A city ordinance makes it a misdemeanor to throw glass on the streets, and it is more than likely that automobilists will prosecute vigorously any person found guilty of the act.

Detective Moore Brings
Letcher Back to Paducah

Circuit Judge Discharged the Prisoner and Threatened
Proceedings For Contempt
But Governor Interfered

HIS TRUNK IS ATTACHED

After a hard fight in which the attorney general and governor of the state of Tennessee figured prominently, Detective T. J. Moore arrived in Paducah at 1:25 o'clock this morning from Memphis with T. N. Letcher, who is charged with converting money and property to his own use. The treatment of Detective Moore by officials at Memphis was bad, he states. But for the immediate action of Detective Moore, Letcher might have escaped into another state. At the city hall after Letcher had been presented and all three charges continued, Detective Moore related his experiences.

"It was a raw deal I got from the circuit court, but I won out in the end," he explained. "Supplied with a warrant from Paducah for the arrest of Letcher, I arrived in Memphis yesterday. The police had done their part, arresting the fugitive, but when the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus came up before Circuit Judge J. W. Palmer, D. A. Frazier was representing the prisoner. I secured the attorney general of the state and he clearly outlined the case, showing that Letcher was wanted in Paducah and producing the warrant.

"That warrant is not worth the paper it is written on outside the city limits of Paducah," Judge Palmer declared, and when Frazier arose to argue his point, Judge Palmer faved him aside with 'I don't want to hear anything from you, because there is not the least scintilla of evidence to show that we can legally hold this man,' and with that he ordered Letcher discharged.

"I was in company with a Memphis detective, and held another warrant with an affidavit I had made stating that Letcher was wanted in Paducah. I instructed the Tennessee detective to arrest Letcher. What do you think occurred then?"

"If you two men arrest this man again I will arrest you for contempt of court," declared Judge Palmer, and we were powerless to do anything. Realizing that Letcher would be gone if immediate action was not taken, I rushed to the telephone and called up Governor Patterson over the long distance telephone. I outlined briefly the case, and he as quickly wired instructions to arrest and hold Letcher until the requisition papers, which he had just signed and mailed to Memphis, arrived.

"Well, we arrested Letcher as soon as the telegram was received, and on the late afternoon train the requisition arrived. We then paraded Mr. Letcher before Judge Palmer and told what we had done."

Letcher's trunk was brought back with him and was attached this morning by the Roy L. Culley and B. Welle firms. It is being held in Magistrate C. W. Emery's court pending trial.

Letcher was formerly manager of the local branch of the National Credit company and is said to have secured $49 worth of clothes from Roy L. Culley, representing himself as manager of the company when in reality he had resigned. He also is charged with taking a check from Lula White and cashing it, keeping the money. Also with taking a $60 diamond ring from her and refusing to return it.

ANDERSON CAB LINE
CONTESTS PALMER'S
EXCLUSIVE SERVICE.

Harry Anderson, proprietor of a cab line, today filed suit in circuit court by Attorneys Bradshaw & Bradshaw against the Palmer Transfer company asking for an order restraining the defendant from interfering in any way with Anderson and his cab service at the Union passenger station. It is a suit which will test the validity of the railroad's contract with the Palmer Transfer company by which a certain space is set aside at the station exclusively for the Palmer cabs. Attorneys for Anderson claim that it is directly against railroad laws to set apart such space.

BANK CLEARINGS
MAKE RECORD JUMP

Over Two Hundred Thousand Dollars Increase in Business Over Corresponding Week Last Year

THE GREAT TOBACCO BUSINESS.

Bank clearings $865,197
Same week last year 602,435
Increase 262,762

For a backward spring, and summer, the bank clearings for the last three weeks have made a fine showing over last year, and indicate what would have been if conditions had been normal. June is keeping up in a way that ought to at least show the first half of the year, in spite of the depression, as good as the corresponding period of 1906. Retail and wholesale trades show little change for the better. A generally depressed business world has been held up by a strong tobacco market, and by the impulse of prosperity received from 1906.

Wheat will be harvested around Paducah within a few weeks. It has done better than expected and the farmers will have money to spend. Corn is backward and farm products generally will show a falling off this year but an unfavorable season as widely extended in area as this one, does not seem to be able to put a lid on the industrial world.

Mrs. Gabriella Wootan.

Mrs. Gabriella Wootan, 68 years old, died of a complication of diseases yesterday afternoon at her home, 1403 Burnett street, after a lingering illness. She was born in Tennessee but had resided in Paducah for the last 15 years. She was well known and generally popular among her many friends, and was a member of the Baptist church. She is survived by her husband, Mr. J. W. Wootan, the well known blacksmith, and two sons, Messrs. John and Spencer Wootan, mechanics of this city. The funeral was held this morning at 10 o'clock at the residence. The burial was in Oak Grove cemetery.

HOUSEBREAKERS ARE MERE YOUTHS

Caught in Possession of Brass
From Residence

Stripped Vacant House of Metal and Took Knives From Prospective Customer.

TWO CHARGES AGAINST ONE.

Charged with housebreaking, Edgar Holland and John Nicholson, boys about 16 years of age, were arrested this morning at Ninth and Harrison streets by Detective T. J. Moore. A search revealed a miscellaneous supply of articles on their persons, developing in addition a second charge against Holland of carrying concealed a deadly weapon, and a third charge of petit larceny. The original felony is unique.

A residence at 319 Monroe street owned by Mrs. M. K. Scott, is vacant, and when the boys were seen to come out of it this morning, suspicion was aroused. An investigation developed that they had broken into the house from the rear, knocked off brass and copper door knobs, unscrewed faucets from the kitchen sink and from the bath and toilet rooms. They made a clean sweep of everything in brass and copper fixtures.

Detective Moore immediately notified all junk dealers to watch out for anyone selling brass and copper junk, and at 8 o'clock the boys showed up at the Kentucky Steel and Iron company, Ninth and Harrison streets, operated by Julius Tick. Detective Moore arrived in time to catch the youngsters with the goods on them. They protested their innocence, and when the city hall was reached and a search made two-pound iron knucks were found on the Holland boy. It was identified as one belonging to Mr. Tick and was evidently "lifted" while the boys prepared to sell junk taken from the Scott residence. When Nicholson was searched a bad hatchet and a screw driver were found inside his coat lining. The formal charge of housebreaking was entered against them and in addition the Holland boy may be prosecuted for stealing the iron knucks and for carrying concealed a deadly weapon.

Edgar Holland is a brother of Herbert Holland, now in the state reformatory. The Nicholson boy is the son of an insurance writer of 513 North Sixth street. The Holland boy is the son of a widow residing at 925 North Eighth street.

For several weeks thieves have been entering vacant houses and stealing brass and copper fixtures, and it is thought the two boys are responsible for the greater part of the thefts.

Brave Captain of Towboat
Saves Crew--Swims Ashore

SUSPECTS FOUL PLAY.

Captain Smith, of the towboat, Nellie, returned to Paducah today and stated that he suspected that a roustabout, who was discharged yesterday, returned during the night and scuttled the boat in some manner. This fact will be disclosed when the boat is raised. There is no other theory. The engineer, whose arm was amputated this morning about 7 o'clock, was brought to Paducah in the Mattie-Efinger ambulance and taken to Metropolitan by steamer.

CHAUTAUQUA END
COMING TONIGHT

More is Expected Next Year to Warrant Even Stronger Program--Would Like to Sell Thousand Tickets

WOMAN'S CLUB MENU FEATURE.

Tickets for next year's Chautauqua were sold in the fine audience that faced Senator Carmack last night, and from the start that has been made a better Chautauqua is assured for next year. The management would like to see 1,000 tickets sold, which would justify him in engaging a high order of talent. From present indications, the financial statement of this year's Chautauqua will just about equal that of last year. Senator Carmack made Friday the biggest day the Chautauqua has had this season the gate receipts from tickets sold on the grounds running over $100.

While the Woman's club lunch tent will be a financial success, all material having been given, this feature did not make the showing that was expected. Several hundred dollars will be made on the lunch tent and, though it has been hard work for the various women who have given their services, they feel amply repaid. Saturday, usually a dull day in the Chautauqua, found the lunch tent with one of the finest menu cards that has been displayed in the season. Many will go out tonight to take lunch and attend the last number of the ten days' program excepting the various numbers for Sunday.

The Wesleyan male quartet has been retained for Sunday and they will sing both in the afternoon and evening. "The Parliament of Man" will be the Rev. W. H. Fineschreiber's subject Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, followed by the Chautauqua Concert company and the quartet. In the evening the Rev. J. R. Henry will lead the vesper services at 7 o'clock and another concert will follow at 7:30 o'clock.

In oriental costume, V. E. Bakshi, will lecture Sunday evening on "The Religions of India." Mr. Bakshi is lecturing before an audience this afternoon at the Chautauqua on the customs and people of India. A stereopticon lecture tonight by Mr. Shaw, the Chautauqua manager, will close the week's program.

Miss Hemenway had the last drill of the Boys' and Girls club this morning and this afternoon at 4 o'clock they will give an entertainment before the Chautauqua. Mr. Speed's lecture on nature study at 10:30 o'clock this morning was his last number and his last impression will make him a favorite if he returns next year.

Allow No Prize Fights.

Mayor Yeiser says he will stand for no prize fights or boxing bouts in Paducah, and issued instructions to Chief of Police James Cillins to arrest the principals and every spectator if a bout is pulled off in the city limits. He issued these instructions when a license was taken out for a wrestling match.

"Nellie," of Metropolis, Sinks
in Clark's River at Three O'clock This Morning and Those on Board Barely Escape

ENGINEER'S ARM HAS TO BE AMPUTATED

Heroism of the rarest sort was shown by Captain J. B. Smith, of the towboat Nellie when that boat sank this morning at 3 o'clock at the Ben Frank mill on Clark's river, with four white men and one white woman on board, and several roustabouts. Through Captain Smith's heroism, the whole crew escaped; but Isaac Hawkins, the engineer of the boat, living in Metropolis, had his right arm so badly crushed while swimming from the boat to the bank, that it had to be amputated this morning at 8:30 o'clock by Drs. C. H. Brothers and J. D. Robertson, who rushed to the scene of the disaster. When the whole crew had escaped in safety, Captain Smith had to throw himself from the nearly submerged boat and swim to the bank. The members of the crew were:

Captain J. B. Smith, 1740 Harrison street.
Mary McIntyre, stewardess, Metropolis.
Isaac Hawkins, engineer, Metropolis.
John Farrell, deck hand, Metropolis.
Jim Haden, deck hand, Metropolis.
A half dozen colored roustabouts.

Captain Awakened.
Awakened by a vague intuition that something was wrong, Captain Smith sprang from his berth on the towboat Nellie at 3 o'clock this morning, to find that the boat was rapidly filling with water, and that enough already had been taken aboard to make the escape of the crew and himself a matter of probability.

Without attempting to find the source of the danger, or taking the time to dress, he aroused the crew by shouting and jerking them out of their berths. Drowsy from a hard day's work in the lumber camps, the crew were not readily brought to a state of consciousness, but vigorous action soon showed them their danger, and they ignored personal property and the boat to make their escape.

This was not difficult for those first awakened, and the white crew with Miss McIntyre, the stewardess, managed to jump to a barge nearby. The roustabouts next were routed out by Captain Smith, who saw that his own chances of escape momentarily were growing slighter.

In his anxiety to get to the barge and to safety, Isaac Hawkins, the engineer, fell between the barge and the towboat, and a sudden lunge of the sinking boat, threw that boat with frightful force against his right arm and the barge. It was crushed to a pulp. Assisted by the crew, he was pulled up on the barge.

Having seen all the crew to safety Captain Smith had no time to consider the best method of reaching safety himself, and as the space between the towboat and the barge had widened as the boat sank, he threw himself overboard into the deepest river in this section of the United States, and swam to the bank. The excitement of aiding the crew to escape, with the physical exertion it had required to accomplish it, completely exhausted Captain Smith, and he lay on the bank watching the boat go under until only the top of the pilot house could be seen.

May Save Boat.

Tied as it was to the barge near the bank, the river was only 20 feet

First Heat.

Starters off well bunched with Harry A the pole. Billy Buck broke on the first turn. Harry A began to push Blackwood on the quarter and on the stretch on the first half passed him. J. T. forged ahead of Billy Buck, passed him and going neck and neck with Blackwood, passing him a length or two before the wire was reached. Harry A finished first by a length or two. Time, 2:27.

Second Heat.

Blackfoot was withdrawn. Starters off with Billy Buck leading. On the first quarter Harry A overtook him. J. T. started badly and followed the two fully an eighth of a mile behind. Billy Buck showed remarkable speed and closed the gap between him and Harry A but while nearly neck and neck, broke on the stretch and finished second. Time, 2:29.

Half Mile Dash.

Starters—Lady Foster, owned by Zach Bryant, ridden by Mose Ink; Bai Padre, owned by Clarence Dickerson, ridden by Brown Slim; Utah, owned by West Kentucky Stock farm, ridden by Billy Ginger.

After several futile attempts a start was made with runners well bunched. Lady Foster showed her speed at the start, and maintained a good lead. Bai Padre finished second. Time, 52 1-2.

Threatening weather interfered with the regularly assigned judges and starters serving, and the following were the officials in charge of the races:

Attorney John K. Hendrick, W. L. Hale, of Mayfield, and Hal S. Corbett, judges; George Goodman, timer; John Early, Nashville, starter.

Mr. Early is chairman of the executive committee of the Tennessee State Fair association, and is one of the best known race horse men in the south. He was greatly pleased with the races and says the club, judging from the recent races, time made, is giving the best matinee races this season.

CHANGING SENTIMENT.

Oliver Goldsmith's "Deserted Village"

Goldsmith in his "Deserted Village" spoke of a certain chapel where those who "went to scoff, remained to pray." So in life one often laughs at what he does not understand and later, when he does understand, his laugh turns to praise. There were some who doubted the merits of Newbro's "Herpicide," the scalp germicide and hair-dressing, but since they have tried it they are now among its best friends and strongest endorsers. Herpicide kills the germ that eats the hair off at the root, and the hair then grows again. As a hair dressing it is incomparable. Try it. Sold by leading druggists. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. W. B. McPherson, special agent.

The following reduced rates are announced:

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—Knights Templar—$26.20—July 2nd to 7th inclusive, good returning until July 16, with privilege of extension until July 24, upon payment of $1.00 extra. Through sleeper from Paducah to Buffalo, on train 104, 1:33 a. m., Saturday, July 6.

RUSSIA SETTLING EASTERN SECTION

Means of Populating Provinces of Siberia

Amur District First To Be Attended To On Account of Japanese Encroachments.

A KAMCHATKA EXPLORATION

St. Petersburg, June 22.—The emigration movement from Russia to Siberia has, since the beginning of the year, attained vast proportions (100,000 emigrants in three months). The sudden activity is due to two causes: 1. A desire to settle the Russian far east with Russians before the yellow wave (whose ultimate arrival is regarded as inevitable, at all events in Siberian and military circles here) breaks over it.

2. A desire to show the dooms that the government is working hard on the problem of agricultural distress.

It will be impossible, however, to even partially solve the agrarian difficulty in any reasonable time by the settlement of Siberia for there is not enough available land there; the settlers have neither the money nor the mental habits necessary for successful pioneers, and many of those who set out with a light heart and a lighter purse get stranded en route or return to tell stories of Siberia that effectively stop emigration from their village for a whole generation.

No Agricultural El Dorado.

Mr. Demitrius Yanchivetsky, one of the Siberian emigration officials, says that three expeditions are to start this year from Khabarovsk. One goes east to explore the mountains lying between the railway and the sea; the second goes west, and the third goes along the north bank of the Amur as far as the sea.

Mr. Yanchivetsky is not too hopeful of discovering an agricultural El Dorado in the district which he personally has to traverse, for it has been found that owing to the bad climate and the wet soil the wheat grown there acquires a peculiar property, which has led the people to bestow on the loaves made from it the name of "drunken bread." This bread causes sickness, headache and some of the effects of intoxication, and good bread can not possibly be produced till the country is properly cleared and drained.

"It is possible, then," said I, "that this country can not at present be cultivated."

Each emigrant, Mr. Yanchivetsky explained, gets 100 roubles in cash, is freed from taxes and from military service for a certain time, gets agricultural implements free, has the benefit of watching the work done in the experimental gardens that the government is establishing throughout Manchuria and gets a cheap ticket on the railway.

"Overbearing Japan" Feared.

The Amur district is to be settled first, owing to its strategic position in view of an "overbearing Japan and an awakened China." Then the Zabaikals are to be settled; lastly, middle Asia. It will thus be seen that recent events in the far east have entirely withdrawn all pressure from the Indian frontier.

The book store of the general staff in St. Petersburg is full of works on Mongolia, Manchuria and Japan, but it would be impossible to purchase in it any recently published book bearing on India, save, perhaps, a thin official account of the project for joining the Turkestan and Siberian railway systems—a project which is not intended as a menace to India, but rather to facilitate the reinforcement of the Russian troops in eastern Siberia.

To return to Mr. Yanchivetsky, Kamchatka is, according to that gentleman, to be explored next year. Of course, settlers cannot expect to live there by agriculture alone, but there and in the great province of Yakutsk the grass in some places is good for two or three months in the year; sufficiently good to make cattle raising profitable. But the settler in Kamchatka would have to be also a good hunter and fisher, and if he had money enough to go in for fishing on a large scale (like Count Kailserling, whose whalers reap a rich harvest every year in Kamchatkan waters) he could quickly become exceedingly wealthy.

Mr. Yanchivetsky finally remarked that the Amur railway will not be so difficult a piece of engineering as the Balkan railway, for this reason, that it can be made to zigzag or go around obstacles, whereas the Balkan line had to go straight through them.

Peasantry is Suspicious.

There is no doubt that the Russian far east will ultimately be settled, but there is a doubt as to whether it will be settled by men with yellow skins or white skins; for, against all the elaborate preparations of the Russian government must be put the indifference and suspicion of the Russian people. The average muzhik says: "You are trying to 'hustle' me out to the far east so that I may not press my claim for a slice of these fat monastic and seigniorial lands, which belong by right to the peasantry. Thanks; I think I'll stay."

In other words the drama shows no enthusiasm for the plantation of Siberia. Mr. Alexinsky, the social democrat leader, fails to see benevo-

WHY IS SUGAR SWEET?

If sugar did not dissolve in the mouth you could not taste the sweet. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC is as strong as the strongest bitter tonic, but you do not taste the bitter because the ingredients do not dissolve in the mouth, but do dissolve readily in the acids of the stomach. It is just as good for Grown People as for Children. The First and Original Tasteless Chill Tonic. The Standard for 30 years. Price 50 cents.

If the leaf of a cigar has a greasy appearance, or shows given blotches, or is of a pale, sickly, yellow, the wrapper is made of inferior tobacco; the wrapper is a certain criterion of the cigar's contents. The color of the ash is not an accurate guide, but if the ash displays a black "lip," a thin dark line round the edge nearest the mouth, it is proof positive of an inferior cigar. The ash of a good cigar should also stand well.

CUPID'S SPOKESMAN.

The place was just what one would wish—

A park; the season, Junetime; Near by, a fountain filled with fish; Above, the birds at playtime; And then, most opportunely put Beside the seat we sat in, Stood Cupid with one tiny foot Set on a line of Latin.

Of course the words were a propos And few—just "Amor Somper!" But Mabel, when she read them so, Exhibited some temper. And, with a pink blush in each cheek, She said: "A marble Cupid That never can be taught to speak Is certainly most stupid!"

Thought, I then, as she looked above, What chance is there to win her Who contemplates the god of love As if he were a sinner?

But try I did—you know the rest, A lover's taste of glory! Quoth Mabel: "Well, I like it best When you tell Cupid's story!" —Felix Carmen in Munsey.

The Past Week.

Society was not too active this week to attend the Chautauqua at Wallace park. All the parties of the week have been informal in nature, but nevertheless enjoyable. Morning parties seem to especially take well, and this leaves the remainder of the day to attend the Chautauqua. The Woman's club tent at Wallace park during the Chautauqua was eminently successful and this took much of the women's time. But the success achieved was worth all the worry and work it necessitated. Next week promises to be better. And as about all the college boys and girls have arrived home a number of parties may be expected the coming week.

Birthday Party.

A most delightful birthday party was given by little Miss Eloise And White at her parents' home, 505 North Eighth street Thursday afternoon from 5 to 7 o'clock, in honor of her fifth birthday. THE HEART BEHIND THE GUN.

Never has the need of a great standing army been impressed on the people of this country. When we engage in a war in which the hearts of the people are engaged, we shall never lack for men to fight. When our people fail to fight for the cause they espouse we shall have no further need of soldiers, for our government will be crumbling. That it is useless to keep a great standing army, France is just now demonstrating to us; for the French soldiers refuse to fight against their own countrymen. More of them have their hearts in the mutiny than are taking part, probably; for it is a serious thing to violate the articles of war. Russia has had trouble with her troops, long accustomed to the grinding discipline of militarism as they are. The conduct of her troops in the war with Japan showed the lack of spirit in the enterprise. It is the hearts of the men behind the guns that win battles, France, hemmed in by empires, necessarily must keep men under arms at all times, while we are fortunate in our comparative isolation; but contemplation of France's predicament emphasizes the wisdom of our course.

Former Senator E. W. Carmack, of Tennessee, who spoke last night at the Chautauqua, is one of the most intellectual men of his time. In the senate he was feared above all others in a rough and tumble debate. He literally fought his way to the top, and closed his term, by stepping into the arena and silencing both J. B. Foraker and Ben Tillman, who were on opposite sides in a race issue debate. For this he was wrung from President Roosevelt, a man to whom he was personally unfriendly, an exclamation of delight. Yet with victories to his credit and an honorable record, when Senator Carmack retired the country rang with applause of him—because he retired a poor man. It was the highest compliment press and public could pay him, that he entered the senate a poor man, and, receiving a salary of $5,000 annually, he did not retire a millionaire. Proof of the man's honor, to be sure, but what a disgraceful commentary on the condition of public life in this country is the inference that a man, so to speak, ate in the prime of life

SUSTAIN CABINET

Vote Confidence in Government
 By 104 Majority

Will Not Make Terms With Mutineers and Will Crush Rebellion in Provinces.

FRESH OUTBREAK BY MOBS.

Paris, June 22.—By a majority of 104 the deputies voted confidence in the government and gave the ministers a free hand to employ such measures as they think best to re-establish the sovereignty of the law in the disturbed departments of the south. The result came after a day of excitement over the mutinous movements of the troops in the south, following widespread disorders of winegrowers. The grave view the French capital takes of the revolutionary events in the south of France and the tragic outcome was evidenced by the scene in the deputies today when the government was interpellated on the measures it proposed to take to re-establish order. Premier Clemenceau lost no time in imparting to the deputies the news from Narbonne, adding to the information the fact that over a hundred soldiers were wounded in the fighting yesterday with rioters. The latter, he said, had disappeared from the streets.

Then amid impressive silence, the premier gave the official version of the mutiny of a battalion of the Seventeenth Infantry at Agde and its march to Beziers, fully confirming dispatches. The premier added that he could not listen to any proposition for conditional surrender of the mutineers, as it would be a most fatal move for the government to capitulate to the soldiery. He concluded with demanding a vote of confidence in the government, so that ministers could carry out in the name of the chamber, the work of repression on which in future much depended.

The opposition, fiercely attacked the government, accusing ministers of sending agents to stir up the populace in the south, asserting that the cuirassiers acted like Cossacks, that troops fired with little provocation and without notification and that women and children had been slaughtered and insisted that the release of Mr. Ferroul, former mayor of Narbonne, would restore calm. Otherwise, one of the speakers asserted, "The bloody rioting of today will be the revolution of tomorrow."

After six hours' debate the chamber by 327 to 223 votes decided to support the cabinet.
 After the terrific events of yesterday the aspect at Narbonne today was comparatively calm. Soldiers were everywhere in such great force that the inhabitants were at least temporarily coerced into activity. The wreckage resulting from last night's riots still litters the streets and all stores and banks are closed and marred up. Two additional regiments of infantry and two of cavalry arrived at Narbonne this morning and detachments of artillery are on the way there.

Fresh Outbreak by Mob.
 Montpellier, France, June 22.—The barricades erected by the mob last night were demolished by troops after a sharp struggle. Peasants tore railroad tracks in numerous places and the One Hundred and Forty-second and regiment en route from Beziers, were unable to proceed beyond Paulhan. Perfect Legallier arrived from Lodeve to investigate the trouble and was captured by 400 peasants, who held him as a hostage and locked him up in the town hall. Railroad stations at Campagnan, Saint Pargo and Villaverac were wrecked. Troops have been hurried to these places.

Funeral of Victims.
 Narbonne, France, June 22.—The funeral of the victims of Thursday's riots passed off without untoward incident. It was an impressive affair, attended by the entire population. All public organizations were represented by delegates. Toward evening after it was seen that no disturbances were likely to follow the funeral, the cordons of troops were withdrawn from the streets. General Toncas, who under duress of the mob swore not to use Cuirassiers against the people, has been retired by the minister of war.

BRAVE CAPTAIN OF TOWBOAT

deep where the towboat Nellie lay. It will be possible to raise the towboat. Every member of the crew lost personal property Captain Smith lost a fine gold watch and a purse with $45. His shoes and other outer garments also sank with the boat. The crew made little effort to save their personal effects, and all sent to the city early this morning to replenish their wardrobe. Captain Smith was barefooted until 8 o'clock this morning.

The rowers sleeping around on the decks and the barge, escaped without serious difficulty. They were not as excited as the white crew, being accustomed to be rudely awakened at all hours of the night. The boat had been tied to the barge in supposed security last night at 7 o'clock. No evidence of a leak was seen or any other indication of danger when the crew went to bed.

The towboat Nellie is the property of Henry Rampendahl, of Metropolis, a large mill man of that town. Its principal business is to tow rafts from the nearby rivers to the mills and it had gone to the Ben T. Frank mill on Clark's river yesterday after a tow.

Captain's Statement.
 In his own words, Captain Smith, speaking hurriedly this morning, as he was assisting in the operation on Engineer Hawkins, said over the telephone:

"At 7 o'clock last night we went to bed with everything in apparently good condition. Something awoke me about 3 o'clock this morning and I found the boat filling. I saw that desperate action was necessary and I awoke the crew roughly. All managed to get to the bank safely except Engineer Hawkins and his right arm got caught between the boat and the barge. It is being amputated now. I jumped overboard and swam to the bank, as it was the only way left for me to escape. No idea of how the leak was sprung has occurred to me, and it may not be known until the boat is raised. A log may have floated against the hull."

MAN IS A MACHINE
AND SHOULD BE KEPT
PROPERLY ADJUSTED.

"The human body is a machine run by unseen forces called life, and that it may run harmoniously, it is necessary that there be liberty of blood, nerves and arteries from the generating point to destination."—Dr. A. T. Still.

We often ask "What is Osteopathy?" How does it cure?
 Osteopathy is a drugless system of medicine which seeks to secure in the human body structural normality of its parts, upon which their vitality and proper functioning depend. "Man is a machine" as we have said, and depends, for health, upon the proper adjustment of all parts of the machine.

The Osteopath examines your body as a skilled mechanic does a machine that is out of order. With a detailed knowledge of anatomy, a sense of touch developed to a high degree, he locates the misadjustments and removes it by scientific manipulation. Could anything be more reasonable or natural?

The great success attending the Osteopathic treatment is sufficient evidence of its worth. It is a new force in science and grows in popularity every day with the layman.

If you suffer of any of the diseases local to Paducah, you will find Osteopathy the quickest and surest cure. Malaria, chronic headaches, liver and stomach and bowel troubles, nervousness, rheumatism, asthma, neuralgia, lumbago—any of these ailments yield readily to the treatment. Phone me, 1407, or call at my office any time from 9 to noon or 1:30 to 5 and I shall be pleased to tell you what you can expect in your particular case.

An Embryo Genius, Surely.

A private school for boys on Madison avenue boasts of a pupil who undoubtedly is destined to high rank as a literary genius. For some infraction of discipline this boy was sentenced to remain after hours and write an essay of 200 words on birds.

This is what he wrote:

"I do not like birds, for in the morning when I am trying to sleep they keep me awake with their twittering, twittering, twittering, twittering, twittering." And so on to the extent of about twenty-five words more.

"And when I get mad and turn over and try and try and try and try to get to sleep they still continue to chirp, chirp, chirp, chirp, chirp, chirp." And so on as before.

"Birds, too, are awful greedy things. They don't do nothing all day but fly around and peck, peck, peck, peck, peck, peck." And so on until the required number of words was completed.—New York Press.

"Looking up from his magazine, the farmer said vehemently to his wife one night:

S.S.S. KILLS THE GERMS OF SCROFULA

Through the blood, diseases are carried from one generation to another. Parents transmit them to their children, and so it goes on down the family line for years and years unless the taint is removed from the blood. Especially is this true of Scrofula, for it is a disease that is "bred in the bone," and unless the blood is purified and every trace of the trouble removed the miserable disease will finally undermine the entire health and wreck the life of its victim. The usual symptoms of Scrofula are enlarged glands or tumors about the neck, which often burst and become discharging ulcers, weak eyes, Catarrh of the head and throat, skin diseases, etc. The trouble being so firmly entrenched in the blood often attacks the bones, resulting in White Swelling, or hip disease, while a waxy, pallid appearance of the skin, loss of strength and energy, and often lung affections, show that the disease is entirely destroying the bright red corpuscles and rich, nutritive qualities of the blood. Scrofula being a constitutional disease, one affecting the entire circulation, must be treated with a remedy that builds up and strengthens every part of the system, which has so long been denied the strength and nourishment it should have received from the blood. S. S. S. is the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics, and is therefore the ideal remedy for Scrofula. S. S. S. searches out and destroys all germs, taints and poisons, gives strength, richness and vigor to the blood and cures Scrofula permanently. It so thoroughly removes the trouble from the blood that no signs of it are ever seen again, and posterity is started out in life with a clean, pure blood supply, which is their rightful inheritance. S. S. S. while thorough, is gentle in its action, and the healing vegetable ingredients which compose it build up every part of the system. Book on the blood and medical advice free. BIG SHIP TRUST INVESTIGATION

Emperor of Germany Said to be Interested

Dictates to What Ports Goods for United States Must Be Consigned and Rates.

REACHES AROUND THE WORLD.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—The interstate commerce commission has been called upon to destroy an ocean steamship trust which Emperor William of Germany has fathered and in which he has a financial interest.

The questions raised are of vast national and international importance. They involve the right of the United States government to exercise control over ocean freight and passenger rates on shipments to and from American ports, irrespective of the nationality of the steamship lines engaged in the business of transportation; whether the development of the American merchant marine is to be throttled by the coercive tactics of a German combination; and finally whether the tariff laws of the United States are to be nullified through the action of a trust in giving lower freight rates to German shipments, from Hamburg to Chicago for example, than can be obtained upon domestic goods transported from New York to Chicago.

The questions are of such far reaching importance that it is understood the interstate commerce commission proposes to direct John H. Marble, attorney for the commission, who has special charge of matters connected with criminal prosecutions, to make a thorough investigation. Mr. Marble's work will have the same relation to the ocean traffic situation as that of Messrs. Kellogg and Severance in the Union Pacific inquiry had to the Harriman roads and indeed to all railroads of the country.

Says German Coscern is a Trust. The condition Mr. Marble will investigate has been reported by the Cosmopolitan Shipping company of Philadelphia, which operates lines to Rotterdam, Holland, Leith, Scotland; and Copenhagen and Denmark. This company has charged that an iron clad trust in transatlantic freight carrying has been organized by the Hamburg-American Packet company.

It asserts in its complaint that this company operates as a monopoly in restraint of trade in its almost absolute control of east-bound and west-bound traffic between interior points in the United States and Hamburg, Germany, and further that it maintains a lay defying pool in New York city, which dictates the rail and ocean routes by which freight for points on the Baltic sea shall be shipped, the percentage of traffic each steamship line in the pool shall carry and the percentage of export business that shall pass through Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and Newport News.

In other words, it is charged that this foreign corporation, backed by the German government, dictates terms, routes and rates to shippers all over the United States who forward goods to Hamburg and Baltic ports, and also that it diverts freight to and from American ports at its own will without regard to the natural flow of trade, using coercive and unlawful methods to crush competition.

Its Lines Reach Every Nation. The power of the company may be estimated when it is known that the tonnage of its vessels is greater than the tonnage of all the steamships of the United States large enough for transoceanic voyages. The complaint alleges that the combine includes the Hamburg-American Packet company, the North German Lloyd, the Wilson line, and the Scandinavian-American line. Moreover, its own lines or connections reach practically every country in the world. It has a foothold in the ports of Montreal on the north and Galveston and New Orleans on the south.

It has reached one long arm around the world and grasped the port of Portland, Ore., on the Pacific coast. From Portland a line runs to Yokohama and Shanghai and has connections

Little Ills of Children

Mothers and all others who have children about the house cannot do their families a better service than to learn of simple and reliable remedies that correct children's ailments. Many grown people are suffering today for the ignorance or negligence of those who had charge of their bringing up.

Children are prone to constipation, and if it isn't corrected early, the bowels get in the habit of not working normally and soon chronic constipation results that may last off and on all through life. Then children eat almost continually and as a consequence indigestion sets in soon followed by worms, or stomach pains, or diarrhea, or any one of a dozen other troubles. To say that it will right itself is putting altogether too much faith in chance. It is tiring with the child's present and future health.

A better way is to give the child a dose of something intended to cure that very trouble, and nothing better for the purpose is known than Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It never cures but it is gentle and as it has a pleasant taste the child will not refuse to take it. Buy a 50-cent or $1 bottle of your druggist and save the child from sickness. You should remember that a child whose stomach is in good working order is not likely to catch colds and fever diseases.

Mrs. Curry, of Trowbridge, Ill., attributes the remarkable health of her child to Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which she gives regularly in these seasons. Her son, a year and a half old, is from a year old to a year and a half old, and is from a year old to a year and a half old, and is from a year old to a year and a half old.

FREE TEST Those wishing to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin before buying can have a free sample bottle sent to them by mail. This offer is open to those who have never taken it. Send for it if you have any symptoms of stomach, liver or bowel disease. Give it to your children, to your sick friends, to your invalids. A guaranteed, permanent home cure. lions via the Suez canal with Germany. Other lines reach the islands of the West Indies and every country of Central and South America.

Recently when the Hamburg-American Packet company acquired the Woermann line to West Africa Emperor William telegraphed to the director general of the company expressing his great pleasure at the extension.

Curb on American Commerce. So long as this company grows in power the development of American commerce, it is claimed, will be restricted. The Cosmopolitan Shipping company insists that, as it has to obey American laws, it is the duty of the government to compel the Hamburg-American Packet company to do likewise, and should this not be done it asserts there is little use in advocating further legislation for the benefit of American shipping.

Another feature of the operations of the Hamburg-American Packet company, which is the subject of complaint, is that the corporation has gone into the center of the United States and apportioned traffic originating in western cities both as to character and amount between cities on the Atlantic seaboard, dictating how much merchandise shall go to Baltimore and thence to Bremen and how much merchandise of another class shall go to New York and thence to Hamburg.

The Cosmopolitan line submits copies of the trust's rebate forms of contracts showing how shippers are bribed and squeezed to compel them to submit to the monopoly. The monopoly begins, it is claimed, with the state owned railroads in Germany, which give rebates, and this company itself forces all European shippers to sign an ironclad contract providing for liberal rebates in return for exclusive shipments by its lines.

An Admission.

He—I'm afraid you are fond of admiration. She—Well, I like it better than I like some of my admirers.

A Slight Misunderstanding. A well known Boston lawyer says that not long ago he was astonished to see printed in a newspaper a glowing testimonial as to the benefits to be derived from using somebody's Curequick. The office of the concern was located near his own and he dropped in while out for his lunch.

"See here," he remarked, somewhat forcefully, when in the presence of the manager, "you have printed a testimonial allegedly from me with regard to your confounded stuff—and I never took a drop of it in my life. What do you mean by such procedure?"

"Is that so?" the manager said, soothingly. "Merely a slight misunderstanding. I assure you, sir, for which I am very sorry. You see, we understood that you had died recently. Take this down, please," he added, turning to the stenographer: Memorandum: Change signature to sworn testimonial No. 124,546."—Harper's Weekly.

FIGHT TRUST

KENTUCKY EDITORS MAY START PAPER MILL THEMSELVES.

They Are Ready To Incorporate For $100,000 To Emancipate Themselves.

Estill Springs, Ky., June 22.—The establishment of a mammoth paper-making plant to compete with the paper trust was seriously considered as the final meeting of the Kentucky Press association, just before adjournment in the evening, and a committee, consisting of President Brown and former President Wallace and Harry Sommers, was appointed to investigate the feasibility of establishing such a plant.

Members of the association indicated that they are ready to for a stock company to raise $100,000, or more, if necessary, to begin business. The object will be to supply white paper to every newspaper in Kentucky at former prices, which in the past few years have advanced 40 per cent. The Eighth district league was unable to make a contract for a longer period than six months even at the advanced rates. The league claims that it saves about 10 per cent by organization.

Luck for Babies.

"You mothers," said a college girl, disdainfully, "have the silliest superstitions about your babies. For my graduating thesis I am compiling the baby superstitions of the world's mothers. They're the most ludicrous things. Listen:

"In Russia they think a baby and a kitten can't thrive in the same house. They kill the kitten as soon as the baby comes.

"In Spain they won't let a baby under three see its reflection in a mirror. Otherwise they think it will grow up vain, proud and cruel.

"In Roumania babies all wear blue ribbons around their left ankle to ward off evil spirits.

"In Hungary they think that if you dress a girl baby in red she will turn out bad.

"In India it is good luck for a baby to fall out of bed."—Columbus Dispatch.

CHAPTER VIII.

IT was 4 o'clock in the afternoon of a fine but chilly March day when Philip regained Holborn with £50 making a lump in his pocket and Isaacstein's letter safely lodged in his coat. The mere weight of the gold suggested an unpleasant possibility. His clothes were so worn that the frail calico might give way and every golden coin rattle forth to the pavement.

So with one of Mr. Abington's shillings he made his first purchase, a capacious tobacco pouch with a snap mouth, for which he paid ninepence. Then he adjourned to an aerated bread shop and ordered some refreshments. While the waitress was bringing his cup of tea and piece of cake he contrived to slip all the sovereigns but one into the tobacco pouch.

He did this with his hand in the pocket itself, and more than once felt a pleasant click as the coins fell into their novel receptacle.

A man sitting near caught the sound and looked up suspiciously. Philip, whose senses were very much on the alert today, realized that his action was somewhat careless. Without even glancing at his neighbor, he took out his remaining couple of shillings and the three pennies, and affected to count them with a certain degree of astonishment, as if some were missing.

The ruse was satisfactory. The man gave him no further heed and soon quitted the restaurant.

Philip tendered the odd sovereign in payment of his bill. The girl cashier seemed to be surprised that such a ragged youth should own so large a sum.

"All silver, please," said Philip, when she began to count his change.

He would take no more risks if he could avoid them. Not a single policeman in London would have failed to arrest him at that moment were his store of gold revealed by any chance. Yet Philip was rich honestly, and there were men driving away from the city at that hour whose banking accounts were plied with stolen money. For their carriages the policemen would stop the traffic. In neither instance could the guardians of the peace be held blamelessly, such is the importance of mere appearances.

The boy, during his short and terribly sharp tussle with London life, had already grasped this essential fact, and, with great skill and method, he set about the task of altering his own shabby exterior.

In a side street leading out of Gray's Inn road he found a secondhand clothes shop. Here he purchased a worn, but decent, blue serge suit for 8 shillings sixpence, a pair of boots for 5 shillings, a cap for ninepence, a woolen shirt for 2 shillings and a linen collar for threepence.

He haggled sufficiently over the bargain to suit the needs of a scanty purse.

"I've cut 'em down low enough," said the shopkeeper mournfully. "Things isn't wot they was in the ole clo' line, let me tell yer. Not but what you do want a new rig-aht."

"Yes," said Philip. "I've got a job and can't keep it unless I look decent."

For the life of him he could not but bursque the cockney accent, and although he used the simplest phraseology the man glanced at him sharply.

Philip rattled all his silver and copper to the counter. He counted out 16 shillings sixpence.

"Not much left, is there?" he said. "Well, look 'ere," said the man. "Gimme fifteen bob. You're a shump lad. You'll nyke yer w'y all right. Nex' time you want some duds come to me an' I'll treat you fair."

"Thank you very much," said Philip, considerably surprised by this generous act. "I certainly will not forget you."

"You can change in my little back room if you like. That lot you've got on ain't worth tykin' 'ome."

"I am obliged for your kindness, but I must be off now. It is late, and I have a long way to go."

"Where to? Holloway?"

"No; cityward."

The clothes and boots were made up in a parcel by this time. Philip hurried away, glad to escape further questioning.

Philip sprang into a bus for the Bank. At the Royal Exchange he would catch a green bus for the Mile End road.

It was almost dark when he reached the Bank. Thus far the omnibuses going east were not crowded. Now the situation had changed.

The human eddy in that throbbing center of life was sending off its swirls to all points of the compass, and the eastbound vehicles were boarded by an eager crowd almost before the passengers arriving at the terminus could descend.

A poor woman greatly hampered by a baby was struggling with others to obtain a seat in the Mile End road bus. Philip, coming late on the scene, saw her swept ruthlessly aside by a number of men and boys. The conductor jerked the bellows several times. There was no more room.

The woman, white faced and disappointed, looked around with a woe-begone expression. Philip, who would have gladly paid for a cab to take her to her destination, dared not nothing of the sort. But he said:

"Keep close to me. I will get you a seat in the next bus."

"Oh, I wish you would," she said, with a wistful smile. "I am so tired."

have walked here from Shepherd's Bush."

"That's a long way to carry a baby."

"What could I do? People won't take care of children without payment. I heard I could get work in a laundry there, so I went to look after it. There's nothing to be had down our way, is there?"

"Things turn up suddenly," said Philip.

"Not for the poor, my lad. I fear you know that without my telling you. But you are young and will soon be a man."

Her wistful tone went to his heart. "Didst you succeed at the laundry?" he inquired.

"Yes; I ought to be thankful. I can earn 9 shillings a week there. I start on Monday."

"Isn't your husband at work?"

"He is dead. Poor fellow, he caught cold last Christmas and was buried in January. God only knows how I have lived since. If it wasn't for the kindness of neighbors, baby and I would have starved. I can ill afford this suppers, but I can't walk any further."

"Well, look out now," he said cheerily. "Here's our bus."

As the vehicle drew up he caught the brass rail with his left hand and watched off assailants with the bundle under his right arm.

"Quick," he said to the woman as soon as the people inside had descended. "Jump in."

She essayed to do so, but was rudely thrust aside by a young man who had paused on the roof to light a cigarette. Philip sprang onto the step and barred the young gentleman in the stomach with his parcel, causing the other to sit down heavily on the stairs. The boy caught the woman's arm with his disengaged hand and pulled her up. He lived in after her.

"You young—" roared the discomfited smoker.

"Ere! Come off of it," said the conductor. "Why didn't ye git dahn before? D'ye want a lift?"

Others hustled the protesting one out of the way.

"Confound the East End, I say," he growled as he crossed to the Mansion House. "What the deuce Lady Lorraine Morland wants to keep on sending me to that wretched mews for I can't imagine. Anyway I can tell her this time that the place is empty and will be pulled down next week."

And thus it was that Philip collided with Messrs. Sharpe & Smith's clerk, detailed by the anxious Lady Morland to discover his whereabouts. They met and bumped into each other in the whirlpool of London just as two ships might crash together by night in mid-Atlantic and draw apart with ruffled feelings, or scraped paint, which is the same thing, without the slightest knowledge of each other's identity.

Within the omnibus the woman was volubly grateful. She had a kindly heart and timidly essayed questions as to Philip's relatives, hoping that she might make their acquaintance.

"I'll be bound, now," she said, "that you have a good mother. You can always tell what the parents are like when you see the children."

"My mother was indeed dear to me," he replied sadly, again driven out of himself by the mournful recollections thus suddenly induced, "but she is dead, lost to me forever."

Some people in the bus ceased talking. They were attracted by the strong, clear voice of this unkempt boy, whose diction and choice of words were so outrageously opposed to his garments. Luckily the silence warned him or his new friend's sympathy might have brought about an embarrassing position.

"Poor thing! And is your father dead too?"

"Yes. He died long ago."

"Where do you live now?"

"Oh," he said, "I have been staying in north London, but will leave there soon, and I have not settled anything definitely at present. Where is the laundry you spoke of? I will call some day if I may and learn how you are getting on."

"I will be so pleased. It is a little place in James street, the only one there. Ask for Mrs. Wrigley."

"It is lucky you understand laundry work or things might go hard with you."

She laughed pitifully.

"I don't. They asked me if I was a washer or an ironer. I thought washing required least experience, so I said I was a washer. I am quick to learn and will watch the other women. If they find me out, I may be discharged."

"Oh, cheer up!" he said pleasantly. "I don't suppose you'll find it very hard."

Her voice sank almost to a whisper. "It is not the work I dread, but the surroundings. I was a schoolteacher before my marriage. My husband was an electrical engineer. We put all our savings into a little business, and then—the end came."

"Not quite the end. I am only a boy, but I've had up and down enough to know that the beginning of next week may be a very different affair to the end of this. Goodby."

They were passing the London hospital, and he thought it prudent to alight at some distance from Johnson's Mews.

"Well, God bless you, anyhow," she said earnestly.

"Ere! Get 'is 'ead screwed on tight, that he!" commented a man sitting next to her.

"Better than that, he has a good heart," said Mrs. Wrigley. Most fortunate Philip that hour, which she deemed the blackest in her life.

He hastened through the familiar bustle of the busy thoroughfare with heightened expectancy. It is true, but devoid of the least fear that his meter would be discovered. His mother would take good care of it. Why, the mere chance remark of the woman he had befriended showed that her gentle spirit watched over him wherever he went. Here was a stranger, a sad teller among the millions, who went out of her way to praise the goodness of one she had never seen. He laughed joyously. Mrs. Wrigley should have further cause to bless his mother's memory.

He passed O'Brien's shop. He saw the old man seated behind the counter. Should he go in? No. Better keep wholly to himself at present. Yet he hesitated. Which was the more judicious course, to remain hidden, unknown, or to drop quietly into the groove where he was recognized? With rare perceptivity for one so young, he reflected that only five days had elapsed since he last saw the old pensioner. The period basked largely in Philip's life; in O'Brien's it would be as naught.

Yielding to the second thought, he entered the shop.

"Glory be to God, Phil, but it's myself is glad to see ye!" cried his old friend. "Where have ye bin to, at all, at all? Have ye heard what the murtherin' war office is after doin' to me? I haven't had a soul to spake to about the trouble they've put on me in me owld age."

This was not strictly accurate. O'Brien had pestered the whole neighborhood with the story of his withheld pension and the preposterous claim made on him by some red tape enthusiast in Pall Mall. But his plaint effectively stopped all further reference to Philip's disappearance. As to the "bit o' shone," he hadn't a word to say.

Philip borrowed a spade, a small sweeping brush and a strong sack without evoking the slightest comment from the pensioner, who discoursed incessantly on the iniquity of the "rev-crime" and whose farcical remarks dealt with the attempt to rob him of "a hundred golden sovereigns."

Decidedly the boy was in luck's way. He had secured some necessary implements without attracting any attention. Watching a favorable opportunity, he slipped unseen into the gloom of Johnson's Mews. He tried the door of No. 3. It was locked. He inserted the key and entered. The darkness within was that of utter blindness, but he dumped his impedimenta on the floor and looked the door behind him.

Then he groped his doubtful path to the mantelpiece where he had left a candle and a box of matches. His boots crunched as he went on what he knew to be mostly diamonds, and he stumbled over the mattress in front of the fireplace. Yes, the candle was there. Soon he had a light. The tiny gleam lifted the black curtain, and he surveyed his domain. A single glance showed him that all things remained exactly as he left them on Saturday morning. The packet of letters rested on the broken chair, the old sack was stuffed into the window and the rope that never to be forgotten rope—dangled from the hook to which he had fastened it.

The slight brought a lump into his throat. He sank to his knees, pressed down, he felt, by some superior power. "Mother," he said humbly, "forgive me and ask God to forgive me for what I would have done were you not watching over me."

DUN'S REVIEW.

New York, June 22.—R. S. Dun & company's weekly trade and business report follows:

Weather conditions throughout the country are reported as seasonable for the first time in several months and response is immediate in all branches of business, while crop prospects have improved greatly. With scarcely an exception the week's news is encouraging, especially from the west. Confidence grows with crops, and orders come forward to leading centers for large fall and winter shipments of all classes of merchandise.

Most of the manufacturers are fully occupied on old contracts and there is little prospect of much idle machinery in the near future except on account of customary midsummer repairs and inventories. Some building operations have been deferred by monetary or crop uncertainties, but a large tonnage of shapes is offered each week particularly in connection with railway and bridge work.

Less activity is reported in the primary market for cotton goods, but there is no evidence of weakness. On the contrary several quotations are higher, print cloths ruling close to 5 cents. Many lines of fancy woolens have been opened and prices rule about the same as last year a few varieties held a trifle higher. Some eastern wholesalers have placed large contracts with New England show manufacturers, but as yet the trade is still light.

SANTELO WOR S

TO DOWN BRAVY BUTCHER
BOY ON THE MAT.

Small Turnout To Witness Wrestling
Match in Mechanicsburg
Last Night.

On account of the small attendance, due to the fact that Shamrock Hall in Mechanicsburg is so hard to locate by "downtowners", no boxing and wrestling match was held last night between Hermann Santello and five local wrestlers and "Kid" Nolan and "Young" Murphy. There were only 25 sports in attendance, boys being in majority, and Santello's manager announced that the feature matches would not be pulled off until Monday night. He fixed the place at Eagle's hall. To entertain those against Billy Walters, the well known saloon man of Third and Washington streets, and Leslie Jones, a young butcher of Mechanicsburg. Walters did not make as good showing against the big wrestler as did Jones, who caused the foreigner to work overtime before he finally worried the local boy to the mat. Jones worked Santello for a fraction over 15 minutes, and his work was applauded by all, even Santello complimenting his strength and endurance. He declares that Jones has in him the making of a star mat artist, being quick and with weight and strength too.

CAIRO DECORATIONS ARE FAIR AHEAD OF PADUCAH'S.

"Cairo may be behind Paducah in civic improvements and in other ways, but there is one thing she excels in, and that is in decorating for public celebrations," declared a Paducahan who returned this morning from the Hustlers' celebration at Cairo. "The way Cairo is decorated and illuminated would make Paducah citizens feel ashamed of themselves. Cairo at night is ablaze with electric light. On the principal streets incandescent lights are strung at intervals of 18 inches all along the pavements on both sides, and at many street intersections there are arches of light. Cairo, in fact, decorates and illuminates properly, and Paducah will have to hustle to keep up with her sister city in this line."

WILLSON READY TO BEGIN FIGHT

Will Canvass Every County in
State of Kentucky

It Is Rumored that Judge Dearing
Will Be Manager of His Campaign.

NO TAFT NOR ANTI-TAFT.

Louisville, June 22.—Augustus E. Willson, Republican nominee for governor, announced that he will begin his campaign early and that he proposes to make a thorough canvass of the state. In fact, he stated at a meeting of the Republican nominees and some of the members of the Republican state central committee yesterday morning that it was his desire that preparations for the campaign be begun at once. The meeting lasted only a short while and it was agreed that another meeting of the candidates would be held next Wednesday in the Republican state headquarters in conjunction with Richard P. Ernst, chairman of the state central committee for the purpose of discussing or selecting a campaign committee.

Judge Dearing as Manager.

It is not probable that all the candidates will be present at the meeting Wednesday, owing to the fact that the speaking during the campaign will be done principally by the nominee for governor. While the subject of a chairman of the campaign committee was not mentioned at the meeting yesterday, it is believed that Mr. Willson will have the naming of him. Unquestionably, if Judge William G. Dearing was not an officeholder, he would be named as chairman of the campaign committee, but whoever is named, Judge Dearing will be mighty close to him.

Judge Dearing is recognized as a splendid campaign manager and was active in behalf of Mr. Willson prior to the state convention. Other names mentioned in connection with the chairmanship of the campaign committee are W. Marshall Bullitt and David W. Farleigh. Mr. Willson said last night that he really had not given the matter much thought, but intended to between now and the meeting Wednesday.

Mr. Willson said yesterday that he would probably rest up for two weeks and then open his campaign.

The Platform.

In reference to the platform Congressman Langley said: "All this talk about our platform being a Taft or anti-Taft platform is absurd. It is simply a Roosevelt platform—nothing more, nothing less. It means that we are for the nomination of a Roosevelt man in 1908, and it renders eligible for the nomination, so far as the question of politics is concerned, every man who can, in good faith, endorse the first part of the resolution, which indorses so unqualifiedly the Roosevelt administration.

"The resolution was not a victory for anybody, but simply a concession on the part of the majority of the committee which agreed to the insertion of what they regarded as superfluous language, in order to avoid a minority report and a discussion on the floor of the convention of the difference between 'twiddle-dee' and 'twiddle-dum.' I helped to frame the Mt. Sterling platform. Within forty-eight hours previous to that time I had had quite a long talk with the president. I am not at liberty to state what was said, but I will take the responsibility of saying like that he does not regard language like that contained in the Mt. Sterling platform as an endorsement of any special candidate. In the very outset of the discussion by the committee on resolutions I made this statement and indicated my willingness as a friend of the president to accept a disclaimer so far as an intention to endorse any special candidate, was concerned. Some of the majority regarded this as wholly unnecessary because the language, they thought, needed no interpretation.

"The roll was called and the Mt. Sterling plank adopted by a majority of one, three of the men who voted against it stating that they were for Taft. When it became apparent that there would be a minority report, the majority members agreed, after informal discussion and in order to secure harmony, to the insertion of the superfluous words, which Mr. Long, of the committee, had previously indicated would be satisfactory to the minority.

"Ex-Senator Deboe and another member of the committee voted against the plank as amended. There has been so much inaccurate comment on this small matter that I feel justified in making this statement of facts."

An Unfortunate Man.
"Poor fellow," said a benevolent woman, kindly, "what has brought you to this destitute condition?"
"My wife, mum."
"Your wife! How is that?"
"Well, you see, mum, I've found her three good jobs, and blessed if she ain't lost every one of them!"

Lack of Quicksilver.

A lake of quicksilver covering an area of more than three acres and having a depth ranging from ten to fifty feet has been discovered in the mountains of the state of Vera Cruz, Mexico. The value of the product is estimated at millions. This lake has been known to the Indians for many generations. It is situated for up in the mountains in an almost inaccessible position. Its surface is partly covered with stones. It is believed that volcanic action in the mountains above swelled the quicksilver out of the cinnabar ore and that it ran down and filled this depression. A tunnel will be driven through the base of the mountain and the quicksilver will be brought down by means of gravity.—New York Tribune.
